To Exterminate Thistles. Mr. Hansbrough's bill appropriating $1,000,000 for the extermination of the noxious plant or weed known as the Russian thistle, or Prussian cactus, in all the states or territories where found, was then taken up.

Mr. George, chairman of the committee on agriculture, from which the bill was reported, made an argument in opposition to it. He spoke of it as a most extraordinary bill, unprecendented in the legislation of the country and a step in the direction of the country and a step in t tion of paternalism longer than any step yet taken. He had heretofore supposed that noxious weeds were to be subdued by the individual farmers; and, if they covid not do it, they might apply to their country or state to aid them, but congress had never undertaken to deal with such a pest. Mr. Harris protested against the bill. He said he was sufficiently old-fashioned in his habits and ideas to believe that the taping power of congress was given for but a fingle purpose; and that was to raise revenue to meet the necessary expenses of the reneral government. Congress had no more eral government. Congress had no more power to levy a tax and appropriate the money for such a purpose as this hill proposed, than it had to appropriate money to build a shanty for John Doe or Sam Smith. The precedent, which would be set by the bill, would be more roxious than the weeds. There were a great many payious weeds in the country-the curons. noxious weeds in the country-the cocoa grass, the Jonhson grass and the crab grass of an amendment to apply one-half of the of an amendment to apply one-half of the appropriation to the extermination of the crab grass in the cotton fields of the south, which, he said, would contribute more to the general good than the extermination of the Russian thistle would.

"I think the one just as unconstitutional and absurd as the other," said Mr. Harris.

"I hope the senator will stick to that idea," Mr. Dolph suggested.

Mr. Call advocated the bill and argued that it was entirely constitutional.

San Antonio, Tex., March 22.—Congressman W. L. Wilson arrived here today from Mexico. He left Guadalajara last Monday morning in his private car and traveled by easy stages to this city, reaching here this afternoon at 2 o'clock. He was met in his car immediately after his arrival by the Southern Associated Press correspondent. Mr. Wilson is very much emaclated and it was only with great effort on his part, and assisted by other fort on his part, and assisted by other members of the party, that he was able to reach the carriage in waiting to convey him to his hotel. He stated to the correspond-ent that he was very weak and tired, al-though he had stood the fatigue of the journey much better than he had expected. He asked to be excused from being interviewed on the situation in congress as regards his tariff measure or any other subect until he had recovered from the effects of his long trip. His face is colorless and he speaks in an almost inaudible tone of voice. He stated that he would remain in San Antonio and other Texas towns until thoroughly recovered from his illness. thoroughly convalescent and if he is prudent he will recover rapidly. He has a troublesome cough which will, I think, soon be made to disappear. All that Mr. Wilson needs is plenty of good food and care and he will recover rapidly." Congressman Tarsney and wife will leave

The Richmond and Danville Must Pay the Taxes Assessed.

Charieston, S. C., March 22 .- (Special.)-Judge Simonton today filed a decree dismissing the complaint of the Richmond and Danville railroad. This suit was sim ilar to the other railroad tax cases heretofore decided. In each case the roads claimed that their property was over as sessed for taxation. They paid the amount of taxes on what they considered a fair assessment and then brought suit against the county sheriffs and treasurers to restrain them from collecting the remainder of the taxes. Judge Simonton decides that the railroads have no remedy at law against the alleged over assessment.

Suing the Western Union. Dallas, Tex., March 22 .- John E. Stinson nd E. H. Rogers, ex-operators for the western Union Telegraph Company, have filed suit against the company for $20,000 each, $10,000 actual and $10,000 exemplary damages. The two men bring suit on account of having been placed, as they al-lege, on the black list of the company as discharged for drunkenness. They allege that this is defamatory of their character, that this is defamatory of their character, besides taking away their means of liveli-hood, as they fiave no other occupation, and a Western Union employe cannot, un-less reinstated by the company, get employment in any other telegraph concern.

A Prize Fight at Galveston. Galveston, Tex., March 22.—Tonight in the Tremont opera house, before a large audience Tom Monaghan, of this city, in a glove contest, knocked out Bob O'Hearn, in the seventh round. The fight was vicious from start to finish. Taey fought for a purse of $500 and the lightweight championship of Texas. Immediately after the fight the principals and their assistants were arrested and are now in the custody of the police under the charge of violating the law against prize fighting. The grand jury, which is now in session, will undoubtedly investigate the case.

Reading of Depositions in the Pollard Case Consume the Day.

SISTERS DO NOT REMEMBER HER Wicked Willie Is Getting in Evidence for Himself. SHE HAD A NICKNAME AT SCHOOL

The Other Girls Made Fun of Her Because She Claimed Kinship with so Many Prominent Kentuckians.

Washington, March 22 .- The dreary reading of documentary evidence, the noting and arguing of objections and the taking of exceptions, made this the most uninterest ing day of the Pollard-Breckinridge trial since it began two weeks ago. A number of depositions taken by the defense were read to the jury and a great deal of the evidence in them was objected to by the plaintiff's counsel. So many were the objections and the exceptions noted that at a request of Mr. Carlisle, Judge Bradley set next Saturday for hearing argument or their admissibility.

The depositions read today were all taker in Cincinnati and in Kentucky, and they related to Miss Pollard's claim that she had given birth to a child in St. Joseph's Foundling asylum, near Cincinnati, in 1884; to her school life and the first visit of Colonel Breckinridge to her, and to her age Two sisters and others connected with St Joseph's asylum made depositions that they did not recognize Miss Pollard as an inmate of the asylum at any time, and several persons who knew Miss Pollard in girlhood testified that she was apparently in the neighborhood of twenty or twentytwo years in 1884, when she met Colonel Breckinridge, and when she claims her age was seventeen. The physicians who attended her mother at the birth of a daughter, named Rosalind, in October or Novem ber, 1865, deposed that another daughter called "Mattie" was then running about the house and looked two or three years

The court will not be in session on Good Friday. Much to everybody's surprise, Miss Pollard came to the court today, though there was nothing in prospect, but the reading of the depositions made by witnesses favorable to Colohel Breckinridge. She was an early comer and spent the minutes preceding the appearance of Judge Bradley in chatting earnestly with her counsel. She smiled occasionally and seemed in very good spirits. Miss Pollard and her companion, Miss Ellis, remained only about fifteen minutes and then left the court

The day opened without indication of interesting proceedings for the spectators who have attended the tri al and who have found that documentary testimony, no matter how sensational, does not compare in dramatic effect with evidence given on the

Could Not Remember Madeline. "I might as well go ahead with Sister

Augustine," said Mr. Stoll, when the court had been called to order. Colonel Breckinridge nodded and as the plaintiff's counsel made no objection, Mr. Stoll went ahead. Sister Augustine was connected with St. Joseph's Foundling asyum, near Cincinnati, in 1885, at the time when Miss Pollard claims she was confined there. She testified that she knew only of one Louise Wilson who had been an inmate of the asylum, and she was there when the deposition was given; she had never heard of Madeline Pollard as an inmate, and she did not remember having girl who was at the asylum in May and June, 1885, who remained veiled and who gave birth to a child, except one, and that woman was not Miss Pollard. This woman, Sister Augustine said, had lived in Kentucky for awhile, but was from the far north and had a family of children. Mr. Carlderon Carlisle and Mr. William H. Johnson, of the plaintiff's counse!, had called at the asylum in 1893 with Miss Pollard, said the deponent, but she could not remember Miss Pollard. Sister Agnes, said Sister Augustine, told Miss Pollard that she was a had woman-she said it to her face. Miss Pollard said she had been a bad girl, but she was not a bad woman. Sister Agnes, continued Sister Augustine was very sharp and very shrewd and would certainly have known Miss Pollard had she been an inmate of the asylum.

Incidents connected with this visit of Miss Pollard, which was narrated by Sister Agnes in the deposition read yesterday, were told by Sister Augustine. Miss Pollard, or her lawyers, had told the deponent that Miss Pollard had been in the asylum under the name of Louise Wilson, but there was no such name on the books. She found the name of Miss Burgwynn as having been confined on May 29, 1885, the day Miss Pollard claims to have given birth to a child. Miss Burgwynn, or Burgoyne, is one of the names Miss Pollard says she assumed while pregnant in Cincinnati. The entry in the books showed that Miss Burgwynn had left the asylum June 30th. while Miss Pollard claims she left the asylum within two weeks after her child was born. When Sister Augustine read the name of Miss Burgwynn during the visit of Miss Pollard in December, 1893. Miss

Pollard said: She Had Many Names. "Oh, yes, that is the name; I had so many names I cannot remember them all." "Miss Ponard called the name Burgoyne," dded Sister Augustine

"Do you believe that Madeline Pollard is Miss Burgwynn?" was asked of the de-"No. sir. I believe she is not. Miss Burgwynn was much smaller than Miss Pol-During the visit of Miss Pollard to the asylum she asked where the call of Miss Burgwynn was, and was told it died in July, 1885. "Then," said Sister Augustine, "she put er hands to her face and ran out of the card in one of the volumes of Irving, Miss Pollard claims to have given the asylum Lbrary when she was there.

Sister Augustine said she did not know whether Miss Pollard could have slipped the card in the books while no one was watching her.

The card was produced in court and shown to each juryman.

This card Miss Pollard claims was given her by a Lexington man, and that she placed it in one of the Irving volumes while confined at the asylum. There was a dispute about the admission of the card on the day the trial began, and in the taking of the deposition of Sister Agnes, the copy of which was read yesterday, an attempt was made by the defense to show that Miss Pollard had slipped the card into the book during her visit to the asylum in December,

When the trial began, the counsel for Miss Pollard insisteu on the production of the four volumes of Washington Irving which Sister Augustine had sent to Washington, and there was a legal controversy before the matter was settled by an order from Judge Bradley for the production of the books. Judge Wilson, Miss Pollard's attorney, said, with some heat at the time, when called on to more fully identify the volumes mentioned, that they were the books from which Mr. Stoll and taken a Christmas card which would have a great bearing in the case. The four books and the Christmas card are beginning to play an important part in the trial.

Trying to Identify Herself. Miss Pollard said, in identifying herself with the asylum, that when she was there she saw a statue of St. Joseph, with a 'cross-eye, or one bad eye, or a concealed eye, or something the matter with his Sister Augustine said there was a statue of St. Joseph at the asylum, but its eyes were all right. Mr. Stoll then read the deposition of Mrs. Lena Schmidt, a nurse at the foundling asylum. It was about the same in substance as the preceding deposition. When Mr. Stoll started to read the deposition of Dr. W. E. Decourcey, it was also one of ignorance as to Miss Pollard and her alias. Orvin G. Brown, president of the Quinn Valley college, the son of Dr. W. K. Brown, president of Wesleyan college, in Cincinnati, where Miss Pollard was a student, deposed that he first knew Miss Pollard in the fall of 1893, when she came to Wes leyan college, where he was then. Her board and tuition-$200-was to be paid by a Mr. Rodes, but all of it had not been

Mr. Brown was asked about a conversa-tion he had with Rodes about Miss Pollard and while Mr. Stoll was reading this part of the deposition Mr. Carlisle objected on the ground that conversations between Brown and Rodes were not material. Judge Bradley said he thought this testimeny was very novel. "There are a great many novel things this case, your honor," said Mr. Stoll. "Yes, there are," said Judge Bradley, smiling. At Judge Bradley's suggestion Mr. Stoll read the first objectionable question relating to a conversation between Brown and Rodes, concerning the relations of Rodes and Miss Pollard.

Judge Wilson objected, and the question was ruled out.

Miss Pollard, while at the college, had the chair, the latter said: said, according to the deposition, that she was related to or knew nearly all the prominent people in Kentucky. Once when she returned from a visit to some relative in Kentucky, who was ill. Miss Pollard had told her schoolfellows that so many prominent people called on her that she did not know what to do. She mentioned among those who called, Colonel Breckinridge and Senator Blackburn, and there were so many people named that it became quite a joke among the girls, who use to calculate how much time Miss Pollard had to spare to her studies after having received all these people. Mr. Brown said there was always more or less kinship claimed by Miss Pollard with these prom nent men, and out of this the girls nick named her "Madelian Vivian Bill-Breckin ridge Joe-Blackburn Pollard." Mr. Brown found that he had entered Miss Pollard's name on his books as "M. V B. Pollard," in 1884, shortly after she me Colonel Breckinridge. It was in June, 1884 just subsequent to the meeting of Colone Breckinridge and the plaintiff, that Miss Pollard began claiming kinship with these prominent people. After recess and before Mr. Stoll re sumed the reading of Mr. Brown's deposition. Judge Bradley said that as tomorrow would be Good Friday, the case would be adjourned over until Monday. One of the questions put to Mr. Brown was, "What kind of looking man was Rodes?" Let Madeline Go Out Alone.

"Oh, we don't care what he looked like," said Judge Wilson, as if about to object to this part of the testimony. "We do," said Mr. Stoll, testily, "we do. No objection was made. Mr. Brown was questioned concerning the relations of Miss Pollard and Professor Joseph F. O'Ber meyer, of the college, and answered that they sustained the relations of pupil and teacher. He had never heard of anything between them, and only recently had seen Miss Pollard's letter to Wessie Brown, saying she was consumed with an undying love for the professor. Concerning the first visit of Colonel Breckinridge to the col lege, Mr. Brown said he remembered that he was severely criticised at the time for allowing Miss Pollard to go out alone with the defendant.

Mr. Guy Mallon, who represented Miss

Mr. Guy Mallon, who represented Miss Pollard at the deposition, said at this point: "I want it to be stated that the witness answered this question holding a book (a diary) before him." Mr. Brown said Miss Pollard was a popu lar girl at school. Bills for Miss Pollard's tuition and board had not been paid, and when she left the institution to go to Lex-she was not asked to come back Mr. Brown testified that he was absolutely certain Miss Pollard had received no telegram summoning her home on no telegram summoning her home on August 3, 1884, for he was in charge of the colege at the time and Miss Pollard would have come to him for permission.

Miss Pollard testified that Colonel Breckinridge had sent a bogus telegram to her, signed with her mother's name, summon ng her home on the date named, in orde that she might go to Lexington with him.

Mr. Brown said Miss Pollard was a girl perfectly able to take care of herself with men and to resist improper advances—she was taught how to conduct herself in this

Mr. Livingston—Then I desire to say that this rule stands on the same footing as the rule with reference to disorder on the floor of the house. Governor McKinley on the Matter.

Columbus, O., March 22.—Governor Mc-Kinley gave out the following official state-ment tonight of his attitude toward the Coxey army that is to March from Massilon next Sunday:

"I cannot but believe that the stories about the assembling of people at Massilon on Sunday have been greatly exaggerated. From all the information I have received, I believe that there will not be any such number of people assembled as has been predicted by the prompter of the movement or the press and no such number as will menace the public and good order of the communities through which the assembly proposes to pass on its way to Washington. With all the notoriety that has been given the movement, nothing alarming comes from Stark and Columbiana counties, the counties of this state through which the march will be made. It may be confidently relied upon that the local authorities will be alert to their duty. It would be a matter of deep regret if any disturbanc were to result to public order from this movement. "I can realize that, however peaceful and lawful the purpose of the movement may be, the fact that a large body of unor-ganized men assembled to make a long march on foot, relying upon support from the country through which they travel, is well calculated to create alarm, yet I cannot think that the movement will assume any dangerous or threatening proportions, but if it does, the local authorities, city and county, in Ohio, will be quite

Again. Lugusta, Ga., March 22.—(Special.)—The citizens of Aiken, S. C., were much sar-prised this morning at seeing the following notice posted on the door of the Aiken County Loan and Savings bank: "This bank is temporarily closed in consequence of an injunction order obtained in the suit of Godfrey Wheeler vs. the Alken County Loan and Savings bank, March 22, 1894. J. W. Ashurst, Cashier."

The injunction referred to in the notice s an order from the United States cour for the officials of the bank to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed. The answer in the case is returnable next Saturday. It is believed by the friends of the bank that its books and affairs will be found on examination to be all straight, in which case the bank's doors will be again opened for business by the first of next week. The stockholders and deposit-ors have no fear of being losers, as they are certain Mr. Wheeler's demand for receiver will not be sustained by the court. Miss Jansen's Mother Is Dead

What Bradstreet's Says.

NEW YORK, March 22.—Bradstreet's March 24th will say: Increased observance of Good Friday in business circles serves to check the volume of trade. Notwithstanding there being practically one less bus-iness day this week than last, continued spring like weather has further stimulated sales of staples at nearly all the larger cities in the eastern, middle and some of the western states. Comparatively fewer southern dis-tributing centers reported large gains. Among the the more conspicuous staple pro-ducts prices have advanced for rice, cotton and Indian corn, decreased ava lable supplies being primarily responsible. Coffee leaf tobacco remain stong at practically unchanged figures and lower ranges of value have been reached by several varieties of iron and of steel; by live cattle and live hogs at western markets; by both raw and refined sugar; by wheat, oats and by mess pork.

The murder of the child worked the crowd into a frenzy, and a rush was made for Shandow, who retreated into his house near by and locked the doors. He then put the light out, and, as the crowd surged up against the door to break it pen, he leaned out of an upper window and opened fire, keeping his pursuers at bay for some time. Meanwhile, County bay for some time. Meanwhile, County Detective Whalen had been summoned by telephone, and hastened to the scene with an armed posse. They opened fire upon the murderer at once, one shot taking effect in his face, and another penetrated his back. A rush was then made for the door, which was battered down. The detective placed Shandow under arrest and led him out into the roadway, where nearly one thousand infuriated people were waiting for him. The crowd wanted to lynch the murderer, then and there, and would, no doubt, have done so, were it not for the nerve of the detective and his assistants, who, with drawn revolvers, surrounded the prisoner and conducted him safely to the

During the fight, Shandow's wife, who was in the house with him, was shot in the leg, and several others received slight wounds. Bochrock was taken to the hospital, where the physicians pronounced his case hopeless. He may die tonight. The excitement in Midvale is intense this writing (midnight), and the jail is closely guarded against a threatened at tack. The many crimes committed by the Hungarian and Slavonic element in this inity have caused the greatest indignation, and threats are openly made that, if the criminals are not promptly punished, there will be a repetition of the Stroudsburg lynching in this county.

Peixoto Revives the Decree to Execute Insurgents. Rio de Janiero, March 17, via Montevideo, March 22.-(Copyright by the United Press 1894.)-President Peixoto has revived the imperial decrees of 1838 and 1851. These decrees authorize the execution, without formal trial, of all persons who have taken up arms against the government as well as those who have aided or abetted directly or indirectly, the cause of insurrection. The persons coming within the scope of the provisions in question are not necessarily Brazilians. All foreigners who have in any way supported or co-operated with the insurgents are liable equally with the natives to the summary treatment contemplated by the decrees. To what extent the power of execution without trial is to be carried is not yet known. In view of the present number of state prisoners, the possibilities are tremendous. The Montevideo division of President Peixoto's fleet has been ordered to Rio Grande do Sul so as to convey from Matto Grosso the reinforcements needed by Governor Castilho. A HERITAGE OF WOE

Is What Chamberlain Says Gladstone Has Left His Successor. Edinburgh, March 22,—Mr. Joseph Cham-berlain, the liberal unionist leader in the house of commons, addressed a crowded unionist meeting here tonight. In the course of his remarks Mr. Chamberlain said that Mr. Gladstone had left his successor a heritage of woe. Lord Roseberry's recent speech delivered in Edinbourgh, Mr. Chamberlain added, did not seriously damage what he had said in the house of lords, and his remarks fully justified the action of the unionists and the peers. Lord Kossbury's frankness on the question of the disestablishment of the church in Ireland, appreached the verge of cynicism and justified Vol-taire who had said that the British had taire who had said that the British had only enough religion to serve their politi-

Mr. Chamberlain said that he concurred with Mr. Timothy Healy in the belief that the house of commons ought to be d secived. REFUSED TO ANSWER.

A Cornell Student Sent to Jail for Contempt of Court.

Ithaca, N. Y., march 22.—The only important development today in the Cornell university poisoning case was the commitment of F. L. Taylor to the county jail for contempt of court. During this morning's session of court, District Attorney Jenr escorted Mr. Taylor from the grand jury room, where he had refused to answer the questions put to him to the witness stand, where Judge Forbes instructed him as to his legal duty to testify. After his instructions the judge announced that Mr. Taylor might have until 2 o'clock this afternoon to decide have until 2 o'clock this afternoon to decide upon what course to pursue in the matter. At the appointed time, after having conferred with his lawyer, Taylor told the court that he had decided to refuse to testify. The judge promptly committeed him for contempt, and he was taken into custody by Sheriff Seaman. It is said that several of his comrades will keep him company in jail within a few hours. "On what grounds?" asked Judge Bradley, smiling. "Expert testimony?"
"Yes, sir," said Judge Wilson.
Judge Bradley ruled out the question.
Dr. Hugh B. Williams, a physician, who had lived in Bridgeport, Ky, deposed that he attended Mrs. Pollard, the mother of Madeline, at the birth of a daughter, in October or November, 1865. Mrs. Pollard then had two daughters. One was called Mattie, who was then "a little toddling tot about two or three years

A question as to her ability to resist advances was objected to on the ground that it was "inexpert testimony," and the rest of Mr. Robinson's deposition was not read on account of the exception taken.

AN UNLAWFUL COMBINE. One Member of the Pool Is Fine

Nashville, Tenn., March 22 .- (Special.) Judge Anderson this morning decided the case of J. M. Overton, under indictment for nisdemeanor in entering into the coal combine. The case was decided upon an agreed statement of facts to the effect that the defendant had entered into the contract as charged, and that the combine handled exclusively the output of sixteen mines handling about 225,000 bushels of coal annually, while the agents of seven mines not in the combine handled only about 50,000 bushels. Judge Anderson decided that Overton was guilty as charged, and fined him $250. A number of other members of the combine are under indictment. NEWS AND GOSSIP OF SOCIETY

A delightful reception was given by Mrs. Frank Bell, assisted by Mrs. Ohl, to Mrs Ella Wheeler Wilcox in the parlors of the Aragon last evening. From 5 o'clock until 7 the beautiful parlors presented a truly brilliant scene, filled as they were with the fashionable and artistic members of Atlanta society, who came to pay their respects to the brilliant woman in whose honor the reception was given, as well as to her charming hostess. The parlors were elaborately and artistically adorned with plendid roses and other flowers. In re-eiving their guests the ladies stood before roses and growing tropical plants. Mrs. Wilcox was, of course, the center

GOVERNOR TILLMAN RETURNS. He Says That He Has a Satisfactor;

Arrangement Now. Columbia, S. C., March 22.-(Special.)-Sovernor Tillman today returned from Washington. He denied emphatically that his visit had any political significance, but conflicts of authority between the United States revenue officers and the state in the matter of seizing and handling contraband liquors. He says that he and Com-missioner Miller had a clear understanding and that the matter was satisfactorily adjusted. It was agreed that whichever seized the liquor first should retain it. An agreement was also reached concerning the purchase by others than the state author ities of confiscated liquors sold at auction state will furnish certificates to purchasers who desire to purchase such liquors for shipment outside the state. The novel agreement was reached that retail purchasers might purchase at these sales and retain the liquor at their homes with the proper certificates thereon, provided they pay the state an advance of 25 per cent on the purchase price. Governor Tillman says he spoke to the commissioner about the contemplated removal of the collector's office from here to Greenville and that the commissioner said he discouraged Collector Townes's scheme. Concerning the statement that he had declared that John Gary Evans would be the next governor of South Carolina Governor Tillman said: "It originated in the same massive brain as did the story that I had a fainting spell."

THE SANTANDER DISASTER.

The Explosion Was Caused by Carelessness in Handling Dynamite: Santander, March 22.—The greatest excitement prevails throughout the city of Santander today, and only the presence of a strong force of troops patrolling the streets and stationed at every convenient point, prevents great disorder and bloodshed.

The explosion of last night was the result of carelessness or accident in removing what remained of the cargo of dynamite n the submerged hull of the steamer Sabo Machicaco, which blew up on November 3d last. The presence of the dynamite in the hull at the bottom of the harbor alongside the wharves was con-sidered dangerous, and the authorities em-ployed a force of men to remove it. The divers were at work at 9 o'clock last night unknown, a quantity of dynamite exploded, and the two principal divers and three workmen, who were managing the air pumps, were killed, and seven men, who were assisting in the work ashore, danger-ously injured. In addition, a number of others were slightly injured, and many nore people who were about the scene of the explosion are reported to be missing and are believed to have lost their lives.

The report caus and a riot later. report caused a panic in the town When it became known what the matter , a mob of furious people surrounded houses occupied by the civil government, and by the engineer who had charge of the supervision of the work of removing the dynamite from the sunken steamship. They barricaded their houses and defended themselves until police and troops dispersed the mob. An eye-witness of the explosion says that an immense column of mud, water and timber shot up into the air, and this was followed by a tremendous report, which shook the whole neighbor JOHNSON FOR EVANS.

Dixon and O'Rourke, his manager, traveled from Boston for the purpose of aiding the entertainment. Dixon was put down to spar with Walter Edgerton, the "Kentucky Rosebud," a muscular colored boy of this city. The first round was tame enough, but in the second round, the ill feeling that has long existed between the two broke out and they went at each other savagely. Dixon was knowked down and it required all the science of his attendants to bring him around in time.

At the end of four minutes time was called for the third round and Dixon did his best to knock Edgerton out, but unavailingly. As Edgerton jumped from the stage after the bout, Dixon struggled wildly with O'Rourke to follow him, but was not a lowed to do so.

BISHOP TURNER MISQUOTED. Emigrants Should Not Go Off Withou Money. Bishop H. M. Turner, who returned from Birmingham yesterday, where he spoi Wednesday night, before the negro convention to a vast multitude in the great wigwam, denies that he advised all the colored people to go to Africa, as was telegraphed through the country. He says, by invitation he did go to Birmingham an invitation he did go to Birmingham and spoke upon his personal knowledge of Africa, including its resources, heaith, future possibilities, extent of territory, customs of the heathens, and their susceptibility to development, but he distinctly said he advised no one to go to Africa unless they were so disposed, yet, he was confident that the negro would never be a full man this side of Africa. The bishop said he favored African emigration, provided the emigrational had some money and good business sens, and he believed all would go there some time in the future.

THE PORTER A THIEF.

Will Humphries Was Porter in a Jewelry Store Thirteen Years.

He Fought the Officers, but a Pocketful of Pawn Tickets Were Taken from Him-A Good Piece of Work

Thirteen years of trust, responsibility and good reputation on the part of the stylish negro porter at Freeman's jewelry establishment have, through searching investigations made by Detectives Conn and lvy, ed out to be thirteen years of deceit theft and duplicity and the accumulated crimes of those years will land the deceit-ful African in the pen for a good long term. series of robberies, hidden and cicver have been traced to his door and the disappearance of considerable quantities of jewelry, which from time to time has been worrying Mr. Freeman, is at last solved. The discoveries were no less surprising to Mr. Freeman than to the shrewd thief himself, who has carefully and ingeniously covered up his tracks.

The unraveling of the affair is one of the finest pieces of detective work that the city detective department has done in some weeks. A negro, who, for thirteen reserved has occupied a place of trust and was above suspicion in Mr. Freeman's store, was proven to be guilty of innumerable robberies and is now innercented at policy. and is now incarcerated at police head-quarters awaiting preliminary investigation. The full extent of the robberies cannot be told, and the date when they began can only be guessed, but that they have been going on for some time is shown by the fact that a watch was recovered which was stolen while the jewelry store was owned by Messrs. Freeman & Crankshaw.

The guilty porter is Will Humphries, who is excessively swell in matters of dress.

He is slightly yellow and always wore lothes of the latest style. days ago Mr. Freeman called on Detectives Wright and said that was being systematically robbed. The robberies, he explained, had been going on for some time and could be traced to no definite or satisfactory source. He placed the case in Captain Wright's hands and asked him to find the thief if possible.

Captain Wright detailed Detectives Ivy and Conn on the case, giving them all the particulars and instructing them to continparticulars and instructing them to continue their work until the entire mystery of the theft was made-clear. These two officers did most creditable service in unearthing the robbery. Two days ago they announced that Will Humphries, the negro porter at the jewelry store, was the robber. This information was conveyed to Mr. Freeman by Chief of Detectives Wright. Mr.

Freeman was incredulous at first. But the detectives insisted that Humphries was the man and he was arrested. Humphries was exceedingly indignant over his arrest and asserted that he was innocent. At police headquarters one of the officers started to search him and he rebelled. The officer continued his efforts and the negro resisted strongly. Humphries showed vig-orous fight, and four officers were required to handle him. He fought like a tiger and declared that he would not be searched, but despite his resistance the four officers succeeded in taking his effects from his pockets without any injury to any one. Among the articles taken from the ne tro's pocket was a purse, and it contained everal bits of blue paper which confirmed the suspicions and charges of the officers. The bits of paper were pawn tickets; there were several of them, and every the of them called for a valuable piece of sewel-ry. The detectives understood what had caused Humphries's strong resistance.

Humphries's home was searched, and some valuable silverware was found. From some valuable silverware was found. From the pawnshop numerous valuable articles of jewelry were recovered. The detectives feel certain that there are many other valuable articles yet to be accounted for.

How long the porter has been successfully robbing his employer cannot be told, but the detectives believe that his speculations cover quite a long period, and involve quite a sum of money in the aggregate. The ne-gro conducted his thefts in such a quiet and ingenious way that he was never once sus-pected, but the detectives soon dropped on

The Remington Typewriter and Splendid Work.

I beg to call your attention to the perfect system we now have in force for the renting of Remington typewriters in this section. While we, of course, are nixed in the opinion that it is more satisfactory and economical to buy a new machine, there are many people who do not agree with us, and who prefer to rent a good typewriter from us. It is best to serve such of our good friends entertaining this opinion that we operate the most perfect renting bureau in the south. Indeed, in the number of machines rented we are surpassed by only three offices in the United States.

We keep constantly on hand in good repair a large number of Remingtons for renting purposes, and can generally supply applicants with first-class No. 2 machines at the same reasonable rental that is charged all over America for that service, and as cheaply as is consistent with the maintenance of a trustworthy renting bureau.

Adrift Without a Rudder. The patronage press is adrift without rudder in its effort to sustain the re arkable position it has taken, in its legire to convince the goldbugs doing siness in Washington that the people of Georgia sympathize with the coniracy to overthrow silver as a standrd money metal, contracting the curcy to a gold basis, reducing wages and valuations everywhere, and creating condition generally that will make hylock merry at the expense of every her interest.

The chief spokesman of the goldbugs Georgia-our evening contemporaryttacks Hon. W. Y. Atkinson, in its isof yesterday, for a statement made his Griffin speech that congress should roceed without any further delay to he execution of that pledge of the demoratte platform which favors the use of oth gold and silver as standard money

The evening "organ," in its outburst Indignation at Mr. Atkinson's plain ession of his position, which on this oint is identical with that of General vans, says: Mr. Atkinson scoffed at the idea of an ernational agreement and yet it is dis-tily and emphatically endorsed in the necratic platform and is therein pro-ed as one of the means by which the rity of gold and silver may be main-ned. The democratic platform fixes very ar conditions for "the use of both gold silver as the standard money of itry," but Mr. Atkinson brushes untry," but Mr. Atkinson brushes these ide and comes out squarely and uncontionally for the free and unlimited coin-while The Constitution is earnestly General Evans for governor, we do ot propose to see injustice done Mr. tkinson, or anybody else who is enged in the good work of making a se of democratic principles, without ering a protest, and correcting misrous misrepresentations. If Mr. Atkinson "scoffed af the idea of itional agreement" he did not do until after the Brussels monetary connce had been called off by the an- tober, Mr. Reed was one of the spe ent of our distinguished repubican secretary of state, Mr. Gresham, nat the United States was through with The democratic platform declares at the "unit of coinage of both metals st be of equal intrinsic and exchangeble value, or be adjusted through innational agreement or by such saferds of legislation as shall insure the enance of the parity of the two netals," but it must be distinctly unerstood that the international agreenent feature is of no more importance han that which looks to the settlement the question by "legislative saferds," which may be enacted by coness at any time. The democratic platrm very carefully guarded against ing international agreement the sole isis of "the use of both gold and silver standard money metals," because e who framed the platform were ell aware of the fact that England d never submit to such an agreeent until forced to do so for self-proion. However, it must be kept in lew that as soon as the gold standard is established in this country, and ver displaced as a standard money metal as the result of the unconditional peal of the Sherman law, Secretary of e Gresham, who was a candidate the republican presidential nominaa against Mr. Harrison, promptly fled the European powers of the Ithdrawal of the United States from er proceedings in the international etary conference. This was, of e, just what England wanted, and net the demands of the goldbugs of

r. Atkinson correctly expressed the ion when he said at Griffin:

aton when he said at Griffin: avor the free and unlimited coinage of and silver now. From the days that crowned heads of Europe struck down r, the people have suffered. The nall platform announces two plans for coinage—one by international agreet, the other by legislation. The first is too remote, and, therefore, we did proceed, by legislation, to coin gold allver as primary money of final payt. This will increase the circulation. the wind increase the circulation.

This win increase the circulation as a try, but as a thing we need right now.

It time enough to talk of ratio when necessity actually arises.

The goldbugs seem to be impressed

h the idea that as the democratic platannounced two plans for making and silver the standard money Is of the country"-one by internanal agreement and the other by legis--it is the duty of the democratic stration to take neither step. Both Afkinson and General Evans unite such redemption should come without further delay. Since international agreement has gone by the board, and is neither probable nor feasible, it is the duty of congress to proceed at once in the matter of enacting such legislation as will carry out that pledge of the platform which commits the party to "the use of both gold and silver as standard money metals." On this very important question General Evans is fully as outspoken as Mr. Atkinson. There is no equivocation, evasion or shuffling in his position. He believes that this pledge of the democratic platform should be redeemed, and that party honesty and party policy require that there shall be no longer delay on this subject. General Evans spoke as follows in his Griffin speech:

Let's build our system entirely on the latform and have no differences. I am for more money; money in quantity and quality just such as the constitution of the United States guarantees us.

I am for the free and unlimited coinage of silver. I am fully and squarely committed to the use of both gold and silver as primary money, and that the currency based on it shall be good and sound currency down to the very bettern ncy down to the very bottom.

If the patronage press wants a goldbug candidate for governor it will find it necessary to bring in another horse The spectacle would be a most interesting one. It is now the people's deal, and they propose to take the settlement of the question into their own hands. They do not intend to be betrayed into endorsement of any more goldbug representatives. They will deliver their opinion on this very vital question in more than one election between now and next November, and when the verdict is in, there will be no more doubt as to how Georgia stands, as between the gold standard and a contracted currency on the one hand, and the double standard-"the use of both gold and silver as standard money metals"-and plenty and pros perity on the other.

Really, if there is to be a goldbug can didate for governor, it is time that he be trotted out where the people can have a look at him.

Protection and Sectionalism. The republican protectionists have habit of declaring that those who would reform the tariff and level customs duties to a revenue basis are sectional ists. They say that tariff reform-or as they call it, free trade-has its nest in the south, and that it is in the nature of an attack on the prosperity of New England and the east. And, in the ab sence of facts that convince and arguments that persuade, they make this declaration the rallying cry of their cause.

Yet, under all the circumstances w think it would be well for those who look upon the McKinley law as ideal legislation to consider the charge that that law is an attack on the prosperity of the rest of the country. It would be well for the protectionists to pause and consider whether the effect of their doc trine is not the very essence of sectionalism. The admission that this is a fact has been made by a protectionist who is second only to Mr. McKinley as a republican leader. It has been made by no less a person than Mr. Thomas B. Reed, who is eminently fitted to speak for New England At a banquet given by the Republican Club of Boston, on the 25th of last Oc-The Boston Herald of the day following printed a report of Mr. Reed's speech, and from that report we take the significant statement appended herewith:

And let me tell you right here that ther And let me tell you right here that there is no state so deeply interested as the state of Massachusetts. (Applause.) If it were not for its condition I should say: "Let these men try it. Let us have the lesson of free trade burned into the quick, and then let us have peace." (Applause.) But when Massachusetts sits around to mourn her destroyed factories, her ruined industries, her ruined machine shops, she sits around to mourn for eternity; for if they are once destroyed, the omnivorous west around to mourn for eternity; for if they are once destroyed, the omnivorous west will do the manufacturing for the country. (Applause.) You have the start, you have the power, you have the prestige. You can keep it, or you can throw it away, and the only way in which you can keep it is by making the voice of the majority of your people to be heard, and to be heard across the country. (Applause.)

This is what Mr. Thomas P. Pood.

This is what Mr. Thomas B. Reed says, and, in his hours of ease, when he has no reason to employ the John Shor. man method of prevarication, he is an unimpeachable authority on the tariff in its relations to New England interests.

We have been told ever since the east learned how to rob the rest of the country through protective legislation, that all sections, every state and all the people were interested in protection, and that all reaped the profitable fruits thereof. But Mr. Thomas B. Reed, dining with some Boston republicans, gave the whole protective snap away.

According to this distinguished republican authority, high protection is a scheme that has for its main purpose the suppression of home competition. We have been told all along that tariff reform would destroy American indus tries, but Mr. Reed declares that it would only transfer them to the "omnivorous west." And if to the omnivorous west. why not to the patient and expectant south?

Here we have an exposure of the whole scheme which the McKinley law is intended to prop and bolster. In order to prevent the building up of the in dustries of the south and west, so that New England and the east may hold their present position, the people are compelled to submit to an iniquitous system of taxation. If we have tariff re form, says Mr. Reed, our manufacturing industries will be transferred to other sections. In order that this transfer may not be made the people must submit to high protective legislation.

High protection has been called class legislation, but it is something worse It is sectional legislation of the mosvicious kind. Mr. Reed admits it, and uses the fact as a threat to rally the millionaire manufacturers to the support of the regulican party.

When the present finance committee of the senate was organized, the supposition was that it was composed of free coinage democrats and tariff reforme proposition that this pledge of the ers. A great cry went up from the New form should be redeemed, and that England press to the effect that the interests of that section would be sac rificed. A wail went up to the effect that for the first time in thirty years the finance committee of the senatethe bulwark of New England's greed and selfishness-was organized in the interests of the people.

But greed that has been entrenched in power for thirty years has strong arms and a long purse. The proper machinery was put in motion, and one fine morning the people woke to discover that the finance committee was not what it purported to be. The silver men had suddenly become rampant goldbugs On another fine morning the people opened their eyes to the fact that the tariff reformers on the finance committee had become protectionists.

The situation is not by any means gloomy. The people are having an object lesson on all sides and on all subjects that ought to last them a lifetime But among other things, they should not forget that Thomas B. Reed has con fessed that protection is a sectional scheme for the benefit of New England

Building Up the South. There can be but one sentiment expressed concerning the efforts of southern railways now being enthusiastically set forth to encourage immigration to this favored section of America and that sentiment is gratification. The railroads find that they have to work out the prob lem of their own salvation along this ine, and have determined to build themselves up out of bankruptcy and financial embarrassment by building up the re gions they traverse. 'No proposition could be plainer; no policy more sound. The railroads have a great work here. What the south needs is more people, more capital, more development. That the southern slopes of this big republic offer the most inviting field for capital to be found in this country is a point too well established to be argued, and that the resources of the south are fast claiming that recognition at the hands of capital and labor they so richly merit is only the working out of a natural law. The fact that many citizens of the south are "land poor," is itself the best of arguments in favor of southern immigration. Populate the wast plantations and estates of the south with a thrifty, hard-working, honest class of citizens, whether they come from New England or the northwest, and the agricultural resources of the section in more perfect development alone would make it the most luxurious region of superior mineral and timber advantages. The work of the great trunk lines leading into the south looking to the encouragement of immigration, the develpment of the agricultural interests, the building up of the towns and villages along their respective lines is certainly a step in the right direction. Many of the railways have sent agents to the orthwest and some to Europe to set forth the advantages of the south to all home seekers. The results are more than gratifying. There is a great stream of immigration pouring into the south through the funnels of these railways that have determined upon such a course, and the benefits will not be slow in blooming forth. Let the southern railways continue the good work they have so commendably started.

Cheapness.

We find the following apt remarks in an exchange that has a good deal to say about market rates, values and prices: Somehow or other it is when things are the most difficult to realize. Many a man has asked lately, "What good is it to me if things are cheap so long as I am not able to buy them?"

One bit of experience such as this is worth more than any quantity of theorizing. The political economists who preach the benefits of cheapness are having their theories exploded by the dynamite of povers.

it cheaper than it is now, but petitions are circulated everywhere for contributions to buy bread for the starving. Dearer wheat and a greater purchasing power would be far better than cheap wheat and no ability

It should seem, therefore, that the object lesson we are having is in some respects a very valuable one. Cheapness is a relative term altogether. Wheat that is 50 cents a bushel is dear to a man whose wages have been trimmed down, or who has been thrown out of work altogether. Products are really cheap when their price has been lowered by improved methods and machinery, for then the cheapness is accompanied by all the evidences of prosperity. But when the cheapening process is the result of dearer money it is accompanied by all the forms of commercial depression and stagnation. We have the evidence of this before our eyes at this

Men who cannot get work, men whose wages have been cut down, men whose business has been hurt, men whose prop erty has shrunk in value cannot appre ciate the cheapness that has resulted from the constantly increasing purchasing power of the dollar. The only person who ultimately prpofits by such a condition is the national creditor-the holder of government bonds.

Bryan in Nebraska.

The state of Nebraska is represented in the cabinet by Hon. J. Sterling Morton, whose sole qualification for the posi tion, as far as has been discovered, is the fact that he is a violent advocate of the goldbug theory of finance.

As a member of the cabinet, Mr. J. Sterling Morton has felt it incumbent upon him to demonstrate his ability to control the politics of his state. Last year, when the democrats of Nebraska were to hold a state convention, Mr. J. Sterling Morton was especially active. He pulled the wires. He hid out in the bushes. He sapped and mined. He never rested until he had packed the convention with patronage heelers Everything was primed, so that when Hon. William J. Bryan, the great demo cratic leader of the west, appeared be fore the convention, he found himself face to face with men who had been subsidized to slaughter him. He was refused a place on the committee on reso lutions, and he was practically refused a hearing. That was last year, when J. Sterling Morton had primed and packed the convention. The result was hailed by the patronage heelers and collar wearers throughout the country with unfeigned delight, and the goldbug organs in the ast pointed to the results of the packed onvention as a victory for their scheme of financial robbery.

There was this difference between the packed convention and the people: The convention was compelled to adjourn, while the people remained in session The patronage heelers who were paying for the offices they held, or trying to earn the privilege of holding office, were compelled to retire, but the people remained on the ground.

As might have been expected, the first esult of the packed convention was to injure the democratic party. The peo ple resented the attempts of the office nolders to destroy the influence of their leaders, and to commit their party to views which it did not hold.

But now harmony has been practically estored. The people (who remain in convention from year to year) have recently had an opportunity to show the esteem in which they hold the gallant young leader of Nebraska's democracy. Congressman William J. Bryan, who is today the most conspicuous champion of genuine democracy in the far west, has returned to his home. and the people are literally overwhelming him with the evidences of their enthusiasm. Whereever he goes he is greeted by the ovations of the people. The masses turn out to pay through him-through his magnetic and inspiring personality-a tribute to the principles of democracy, the principles of honesty and justice. The enthusiastic reception of Con gressman Bryan is not merely a tribute to democratic principles-it is a with of Nebraska, who by the bribery of office, stifled public opinion. The people of the west-the people of Nebraska-are in line with the people of the south. They stand on the democratic platform. It Will Not Work.

ering rebuke to the patronage heelers

The Walton News is a paper which has a record for fairness in most things: it is, therefore, surprising that it has, to a certain extent, joined in the cry of town against country in connection with the gubernatorial campaign.

It has been recently demonstrated in sensible editorials in Georgia weekly newspapers that this old "chestnut" of town vs. country has no place in the campaign and will not help the cause of the candidate in whose interest it is brought forward. The people are wise than the politicians, and the stamp of their disapproval is on all unfair methods. Our Walton contemporary brings Atlanta into it, of course, and assures us that "Atlanta must give way to Coweta this time." This is the way other papers, friendly to Mr. Atkinson, have been talking; but we repeat that such arguments have ceased to influence the verdict of the people, and make but poor material for the basis of a campaign. The people, seeing clearly through them, will not be prejudiced by

There is no town and no county in this campaign. The state at large has called General Evans to be its standard bearer. And with him the state is will ing to rest its case.

Democrats who cannot stand on the platform of the party will have to find some other roost.

A cold wave is coming in from the west. But it is not to be compared to the hlizzard that will strike those who are trying to twist the Chicago platform around to fit

The civil service reform that keeps re publicans in office under a democratic administration is not the sort of reform the people voted for. The campaign in Alabama seems to be

The Texas basis of harmony is the kind that will hold the party together.

THE COMING EXPOSITION.

From The Gainesville, Ga., Cracker. Great is Atlanta. She is a wonderful city, full of wonderful people, gifted with grit and git-up-and-git above the sons of men. No calamity can keep her down; no depression stills her restless energy; her future no man can now foretell, nor can limit be set to her boundless possibilities. She is irrepressible in her daring; sublime in the faith she has in herself, and wonder on wonder grows at the success she achieves in what sometimes seems impossible undertakings.

Her coming exposition for 1895 is just not in evidence as proof of all this. other city of the south, or even in the whole country, in the face of present de-pression, would have had the nerve to lay out an exposition cut to so large a pat-tern? What other city could have in less than three months settled all the preliminaries, got through all the little local squa bles over location, officers, etc., raised hard on to a quarter million dollars, and set in motion the machinery for an exposition international in its scope, and be hard down at work carrying out the plans which have been cast in such mastodonic mold? Ard yet all this Atlanta has done. It does her infinite credit, and only morbid minds, vinegared with jealously, would grudge the meed of praise to which her enterprise entitles her. The Cracker mentions these things now to say that it is with her heart and soul in her enterprise and to give notice that it shall contend right along from now on for Gainesville Hall county and northeast Georgia to seize upon the opportunity which this exp will bring, to make such an exhibit of their

ABOUT THE GOVERNORSHIP.

In an editorial on the Evans-Atkinson de nate at Griffin The Griffin Call says: Yesterday was virtually the culminatio of the candidacy of General Ciement A Evans and Colonel W. Y. Atkinson for governor, so far as Spalding county is con erned. They met on the stump, or rather re-erected platform, and so far as platorms go they stood on the same de cratic plank. "Both have their admirers here, but even the most 'offensive partisan' in a political sense, if it can be used where both candidates are pledged to the same party, cannot deny the fact that General Evans has the support of the larger portion of Spalding county. There was an attempt made yes terday by his opponents to capture the county by a bluff, but it signally failed."

This is the way The Talbotton New Era

lews it:
"It is said that General Evans was a minister before the war. If so, why were not objections raised to his quitting the ministry to become a soldier? It is no more improper for a minister to become a governor than to become a soldier."

The Dawson News sums up as follows: "Those who take an interest in political matters, and are presumed to know, say that the Coweta candidate won't be in it The city and country are both large ly for General Evans."

Says The Savannah Press: "It is pleasant to learn that Mr. Atkinson will vote for General Evans when he is nominated. Georgia needs every demo nor a rousing majority.'

Colonel Dan Hughes prominently space of as a candidate for is prominently spoken of as a candidate for the state senate. Hope Polhill and W. B. Burch are both probable legislature candi-dates."

The Dawson News says that indications grow stronger every day that there is a general desire for Judge J. M. Friggs, Dawson's brilliant and popular young jurist, to enter the race for congress this year from the second district; and The News adds:

"He is being daily urged by all riesses of people from all sections of the district to consent to the use of his name, and, if he will do so, they promise to raily en-thusiastically to his support. Judge iriggs declines to say whether he will or will not be a candidate for congress, and, when approached on the subject, simply says that he is now on the bench, and his sole am-bition is to fill that posicion with credit to bition is to fill that position with credit to himself and the state and satisfaction to the people. Notwithstanding Judge Griggs's reticence, there is a general impression that he will enter the race. If he does, he will go in to win, and will be prepared to rak it lively for all other aspirants."

Some of Colonel R. M. W. Glenn's friends are grooming him for congressional The Ringgold New South says of his "He would make a congressman all north Georgia would feel proud of. He distinguish-ed himself in the state senate."

A Good Suggestion.

Editor Constitution: The suggestion of a tobacco building as one feature of the coming Cotton States and International exposition is an admirable one. The idea, if fully developed and carried out, bringing, as it would exhibits of the crude leaf from all quarters where it is produced, might result in untold development for Georgia. It would not be giving the weed undue prominence to allow, say two acres of the ground to be devoted to its growth-the product to be cured by an expert in a "barn" erected on the grounds for that purpose. There are patent barns, patent flues, patent tobacco sticksall of which would seek exhibition. This fact would doubtless make it an easy thing to show the plant in all its stages, from the deld to the factory. What an object lesson this would be to the planters of Georgia Blessed with a climate and soil in the northern part of the state admirably adapt ed to the growth of "bright wrappers" and other high grades of the weed, and elsewhere in the state, surrounded by cond tions of climate and soil necessary to the production of cigar tobacco of superior quality, there but remains for the farmer to know how to plant, cultivate, cure and handle this great staple. That knowledge ac quired a revolution in agriculture will sweep over Georgia, emancipating tillers of the soil from the thraldom of cotton slavery. Major Ragland, of Virginia, one of the best known and most successful tobacco planters in this country, is authority for the statement that there are to be found in the United States no lands better suited to the growth of high grade tobacco than the hills and valleys of north Georgia. Can this additional idea be incorporated into the tobacco feature of the exposition? It would planter an object lesson that could not be overestimated. Rome, Ga., March 22d.

In order to make an attempt to become more independent and prosperous, I would suggest to call mass meetings of the citizens and of all labor and other organizations of this state and city, and pass the following or similar resolutions; and, after passage, have the same made known in the manufacturing centers of the north and east.

Atlanta, the metropolis of the south, and recognized as its most go-ahead and liberal city, would no doubt receive attention from manufacturers, and may assure us that, even before the realization of our exposition of 1895, we may find our hopes realized.

exposition of 1835, we may find our hopes realized.

Let this meeting pass resolutions embodying the following ideas, that recognizing the importance of encouraging home industries it be resolved that we pledge ourselves to give our support to all new enterprises in the state and city—to buy articles of all kinds manufactured in Atlanta or in Georgia in preference to the same articles made elsewhere, and make it obligatory upon those with whom we deal to do likewise, provided the home-made article is as good and as cheap—that the newspapers of the state be urged to take up this question and push t in their several localities—that the council extend all possible aid to encourage the location of manufacturing enterprises in Atlanta, and that a warm encouragement be extended to all new industrial enterprises.

AT THE FIRST METHODIST CHURCH

Addresses of Welcome by Judge W. R. Hammond, Judge E. C. Kontz and Dr. C. P. Williamson.

In the lecture room of the First Methodist church last night, the sixteenth annual state convention of the Young Men's Christian Association was formally opened. Mr. Henry Hillyer, the chairman of the state committee, in the absence of Mr. Mallory, the chairman of the last convention, called the meeting to order. called the meeting to order. In providing for a temporary secretary, Mr. John D. Moss, of Athens, Ga., was called to that position.

The chairman then announced that it was n order to appoint a committee on perma-nent organization, and the name of each clation was called for the purpose of having a member of the committee named.

The committee thus appointed held a meeting last night after the adjournment of the neeting, and will make a formal this morning. A committee on business, consisting of Judge Hammond stated that he was the friend and champion of the Young Men's Christian Association. It had accomplished the means of saving many a young mar who had come to the city for the purpose of seeking his fortune. The Christian association was not intruding upon the domain of the church, but was supplementary to the church's work. It was impossible for a pastor to go out into the city and meet the young men who were growing up in it. This was the work of the association. He

His address was pure in thought and diction, and his fervency of speech left no

Dr. C. P. Williamson, in the absence of Dr.

the clergy. It was bright and full of the characteristic humor for which Dr. Williamson is noted. He made an eloquent plea for Christian union, and stated that he was in love with the association because it sought to bring about this end, and was composed of earnest, Christian young men.

Response by Professor Barrow. The response to the addresses of welcowas made by Professor D. C. Borrow The response to the addresses of welcome was made by Professor D. C. Borrow, of the State university.

Professor Barrow expressed himself as glad of the opportunity of coming to Atlanta, and of being the recipient of her renowned hospitality. He did not expect, however, to be entertained by the governor of the state, and yet such was the pleasant situation in which he was placed. He believed in united Christian work, and thought that all denominations should aid and encourage the work of the Christian association. The addresses of welcome to which he had listened he said had touched his heart, and he never felt so much the need of speech to oppress his gratitude and appreciation.

After singing a familiar gospel hymn Mr. C. J. Hicks, of New York, was presented to the convention. His subject was "The Worldwide Work," and the manner in which he discussed it was a tribute to his clear information and ability. He charmed the convention for nearly an hour with a discussion of the magnitude and importance of Christian work in the domain of the association.

Mr. Jack Spalding moved the appointment of a committee, consisting of President Hemphill, Mr. S. M. Inman, Dr. Spalding, Governor Bullock and Mr. A. D. Adair, to map out a plan for this feature of the exposition, and report back to the board. This was adopted.

A Letter from Alabama At the suggestion of the committee, a letter was read from Booker T. Washington principal of the Tuskegee Normal and In ustrial institute, who is one of the foremost men of his race in technological and industrial education, and who is doing an excellent work at that institute. In this letter, which was written to Smith Easley, he says:

he says:

"Please allow me to say that 1 am deeply interested in this exposition, and especially go 1 think the management has acted wisely in setting apart a separate building for the exhibits of the colored people. This is especially opportune, since aithough a large number of colored people asked for it, the Chicago management refused to give the colored people the proper recognition in this respect. Such an exhibit, it properly managed and systematized, will give the colored people such an opportunity to exhibit their educational and industrial growin during the last twenty-live or thirty years as they have never had before, and 1 am sure that it cannot but create great interest and do great good, and the fact that this opportunity is given by a souldern exposition will tend to cement more and more the friendship of the two races, and show to the world that the colored and white people can live together in peace and have prospertive. can live together in peace and have pro

A CASE OF DEBT. Detective Ryan Will Not Get Morgan, of Dawson.

Detective Ryan, of Cincinnati, who came here two days ago with a warrant and requisition for W. A. Morgan, of Dawson, Ga., will return empty-handed. The requisition has been refused.

A new phase of the case has been shown by Colonel Guerry, of Dawson, attorney for Mr. Morgan, which robs the case of its criminal phase. According to the showing made it is a case of debt rather than embezzlement. On this Governor Northen refused the requisition.

The local police department has shown

The local police department has shown Detective Ryan every possible courtesy, and yesterday Chief of Detectives Wright accompanied him to the state capitol to attend the hearing before the governor The governor refused the requisition and wrote a personal letter to Governor McKin-ley setting forth his reasons. Detective Ryan will return to the Queen City this Detective Green last night arrested Charley Redding, a negro with about a dozen aliases, who is badly wanted in Columbus for robbery. The arrest was made on a letter written to Chief Connolly by Solicitor Price Gilbert, of Columbus, who says that Redding, who has a number of allases, was indicted by the last grand jury of Muscoge county for robbery from the person. Redding is said to be a bad negro. He will be returned to Columbus as soon as an officer can come for him.

Chief Connolly issued a special order ye terday making several changes in the de-partment. Officers Mewborn, Cochran, Kitch, Ponder, Lanford, Jolly, Smith and Thompson were transferred from their watches to other watches. Officer Mew-orn goes to Grant park as special officer there, associated with Patrolman Lackey. Officer Cochran, formerly at the park, is transferred to the city.

Mahomet, not the great prophet, but a dark looking foreigner, was arrested by Jumbo Hunter yesterday. He is charged with doing business without license. Jumbo carried the unfortunate to police head-quarters, but the latter managed to put up sufficient collateral and was released until today, when the case will be tried.

CITY NEWS AND GOSSIP.

NON-SUITED .- Judge Van Epps nonsuited the case of D. S. Blalock against the Western and Atlantic railroad. The road was represented by Messrs. Payne & Tye and Mr. R. J. Jordan represented the defense. The suit was for $10,000 damages.

SUING THE CONSOLIDATED .- Two suits growing out of the same accident were filed yesterday in the clerk's office. Mrs. N. C. Mosley filed a suit for $5,000 against the Atlanta Consolidated Street Railway Company. She alleges that she was thrown violently down by a car starting too sud-denly and that she received numerous injuries. Mr. I. I. Mosley, husband of Mrs. Mosley, files a second suit for $5,000. He al leges that his wife was seventy-three years old at the time of the accident and that he has thereby been damaged to the amount

PLUM STREET MISSION -There will be PLUM STREET MISSION.—There will be interesting Easter services held at the Church of the Good Shepherd on Plum street Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, conducted by Dr. T. C. Tupper, who will preach at that time and celebrate the holy communion for the good people in that section of the city. This is the first time n many years that the congregation has had the privlege of an Easter day service and they will gladly avail themselves of the opportunity on this occasion.

WILL MEET SATURDAY.-The board of commissioners of the Summer Normal school will meet tomorrow in the office of Captain Bradwell. Captain Bradwell states that there is no money for the pur-pose of running the summer normal, since Captain the legislature refused an appropriation but that the commissioners intend to find some way of having the normal school for a month at least. There is about $1,000 of a special fund in the hands of Captain

AT HIS OLD HOME.-Mr. G. B. Parker. the well-known horseshoer, is now visiting his old home, at Deep River, Conn. Mr. Parker has been a resident of Atlanta for the past twelve years, and during that time has not seen his old home. His return to the Nutmeg State will make him a better Atlantian when he gets back again.

AT THE CENTRAL PRESBYTERIAN.church, an entertainment will be given for the benefit of the Pryor street chapel. All who attend are expected to bring as many pieces of money as they have years in their age. The occasion will be one of peculiar interest. Refreshments will be served.

LEAVES FOR ABBEVILLE.—Captain Bradwell will leave for Abbeville on Mon-day. He goes down to give instruction and information in regard to the quarterly payments which begin on April 1st.

TO SEE THE FLOW AS IT CAME

From the Water Plugs in the Seventh Ward-The Addresses That Were Made on the Occasion.

Mayor Goodwin, in the presence of one of the largest and most select parties the seventh ward has ever seen, turned the key to the water plug at the corner of Lee and Park streets yesterday afternoon and—Five seconds later Chattahoochee river water was falling upon the roof of the West End church in which Dr. Lee preached so lear ed so long.

Long before the water was turned on ladies, children and gentlemen of the new ladies, children and gentlemen of the new ward began gathering about the corners of Lee and Park streets, so that when Mayor Goodwin and the members of the genor Goodwin and the members of the craim of the city hall officials arrived the church lawn and residence yards were well crowded. Chief Joyner rolled up in his little red wagon just as the city people began to arrive and immediately behind him came a hose wagon, upon which the pick of his firemen sat. The hose wagon was driven direct to the plug at the corner of Lee and Park streets and a line of hose was strung. Then another line was strung from another plug and with nozzles in their hands the firemen waited.

At 5 o'clock Mayor Goodwin, accompanied by Hon. George Hillyer, president of the water board, and Chief Joyner, walked up to the plug on the corner. At the same time Mr. Nelms, the representative in the general council from that ward and once the mayor of West End, with Hon. G. A. Howell, an ex-mayor of the new ward, and one of the stanchest friends and supporters of the annexation, went to the othplugs and instantly streams of water flowed from the nozzles.

Then a shout went up from the throng. The urchins who were out ran through the falling shower as it came from the line of hose while the gathering of ladies, gentlemen and city officials watched the work. For fully a quarter of an hour the water came and then, after the streets, the church lawn and the yards had been well watered, the signal was given and the streams were cut off.

It was then that the officials congregated and the talking began.

Hon. G. A. Howell, master of ceremonies, simply raised his hand and when the throng became quiet introduced Hon. John W. Nelms, member of the general council from that ward. Mr. Nelms related the story of the annexation of West End and declared that no contract had ever been more faithfully carried out than the contract Atlanta had made with West End as to the basis of annexation. Mr. Nelms's talk pleased the crowd, and his argument in favor of annexation generally was happily received. The representative from the seventh closed by introducing Hon. John B. Goodwin, mayor of the city.

Introducing Fion. John B. Goodwin, mayor of the city.

Mayor Goodwin was in his happiest mood, and after expressing his great pleasure at being present, congratulated not only the people of West End, but the city of Atlanta upon the union of the two municipalities. The mayor talked at length as to the great results that had come about by the annexation and the results the great results that had come about by the annexation and the results that were promised. He spoke of the inflow of water and the new engine house now being built and of the worth and value to Atlanta of the citizenship which had been acquired by the annexation. Mayor Goodwin in retiring presented Hon. George Hillyer president of the water beard. board.

Judge Hillyer talked about the inflow and Probably the most interesting address of the evening was by Colonel G. W. Adair who followed Judge Hillyer. Colonel Adair went back to the day when the memory of man runneth not to the contrary and said that he knew when three pails of water supplied all the pople of West End. Then he talked about those three buckets of water until he saw the Chattahoochee river spraying upon the tallest building in the ward. Colonel Adair's address was interesting throughout.

Captain Howell, who was to have made a remark or two, was unable to be present, having been called out of the city by a telegram, but ex-Mayor G. A. Howell made the vacuum good with a pretty two minute talk which caught the crowd.

Then, it was nearly dark and the assembly dispersed. Probably the most interesting address

"SHIP AHOY" LAST NIGHT.

The Grau Opera Company presented "Ship Ahoy" last night before an enthusiastic audience. The opera has never before been heard in Atlanta. The dialogue is bright and crisp throughout, while the nusic is pretty and catchy, and will please

Mr. Bell, as the commodore, made a big hit in the role. His fine basso was greatly admired, and his acting was all that could be desired. Of course, Tom Persse, the be desired. Of course, Tom Persse, the tenor, caught the house, as Lieutenant Lollypop. His voice, since last season, has grown truer, and the quality is much better. Mr. Waldo, as Ensign Toodles, was a big success. Martin Cheesman made a splendid boatswain. Stanley Felch had things his own way. His impersonation of Colonel Mapleson of the Oriole Opera Company, was very laughable. Felch's comedy is purely original. Miss Mason and Miss Carle were accorded much applause. Miss Fairburn, as Lula Lalla, went well. In the second act, Miss Nellie Delmaine and Mr. Cheesman appeared in a sailor's hornpipe.

During the finale of the last act, Miss Mason, Miss Carle, Mr. Persse and Mr. Bell sang a selection from Riogsletta, with fine musical conception.
Tonight "The Bohemian Girl" will be sung, at the Grand.

"Bohemian Girls" Tonight. A great treat is in store for the theater-going public tonight. The Grau company will sing that best of all light operas, "The Bohemian Girl." Edith Mason will sing the part of Arline in a manner which will remind one of Emma Abbott, Her rendition of "I Dreamt I Dwelt in Marble Halls" is sure to captivate all her hearers. This is Miss Mason's favorite role, as it gives her a greater scope than is given her in any other opera.

Thomas Persse will sing "Thaddeus," a role in which he has won much success. The part of the count will be sung by John Bell. His splendid baritone voice will be heard to great advantage in it. The Gypsy queen is a part which affords Miss Carle splendid opportunities. That she will make the most of them goes without saying. Miss Carle has a magnificent voice and stage presence. The other parts will be in capa ble hands, and the performance promises t be a most enjoyable one. Beautiful souvenirs will be distributed.

The postage stamp craze is throughout the country—at least this is the conclusion that has forced itself upon Postmaster Fox during the past week. some species of the Columbian stamps are getting rare and the collectors are gatherng them in from every direction. these stamps still remain at the Atlanta office, but the collectors all over the country have got on to it, and they are fast disappearing. Yesterday the postmaster re-ceived an order from New Jersey for $160 worth of stamps of the two, three and five-dollar species. Let-ters are pouring in upon Dr. Fox, and nis supply of curios will soon be exhausted.

The nostal service has been extended to Palm Beach, Fla., from Atlanta. This is the most southern point in the United States reached by rail, and is just off the Everglades. Heretofore the mail has been for-warded by steamer, but railroad connection is now made through Jacksonville and the pouches are forwarded via that point. Mr. Welborne Colquitt, of the internal

NEW YORK, March 22.—Stocks closed barely steady owing to realizations by room-traders in anticipation of the holiday and short session on Saturday. At the same, time there was no pressure of stocks except in St. Paul and Sugar. Reading-was the weak feature and receded on sales for Philadelphia accounts. It is understood that the general freight agents have agreed to abandon the arbitration rate to tide-water, and this will mean a loss in traffic receipts to Reading which has been charging $1.75 a ton irrespective of the size and value of coal transported. The pool in American Tobacco common made further headway, and picked up all the floating stock under their limit. It is rumored that the company is earning a good surplus over the company is earning a good surplus over regular dividends. Whisky was firm on the report that at a conference with the American Distributing Company a new agreement will 2 signed which will be mutually satisfactory. The whisky trust is said to have conceded several points and the American Distributing Company has offered to control prices quoted by several independent distillers so that cut' rates now in vogue will no longer prevail.

Atwood Violett & Co's. Cotton Letter. By Private Wire to J. C. Knox, Manager. NEW YORK, March 22.—Liverpool stocks of American on hand and affoat today is 1,657,000, against 1,457,000 last year, and yet exports to Great Britain have been 2,443,291, of American on and and anoat coday is 1,667,000, against 1,457,000 last year, and yet exports to Great Britain have been 2,443,291, against 1,732,252 last year. Therefore, while we have given that country 711,000 more than last year to date they have only 210,000 more visible of American, they have consequently consumed 500,000 more than last year, or, anyhow, have taken it out of the visible supply there. We have exported to all Europe since September 1st 4,291,000, against 3,259,000 last year, and yet the excess in sight of this crop over last year on Friday last was only 797,000 bales. Liverpool says substantially we have enough cotton to run us until October next, and in the meantime America will give us a crop next year of 8,000,000 bales, or will endeavor to do so by an acreage, so they are informed from this side, and we will get the market down to spinners' prices. What spinners' prices are the south will find out another year if they put more area in cotton cultivation. How much more of our cotton cultivation. How much more of our cotton Europe would have taken to date had they had the competition of the American spinner, and had they not had 7,750,000 estimates, with all the demoralization resulting therefrom, it is impossible to say, but we do know that Europe, and especially Great Britain, is in a position to snap their fingers at the American producer, as there is a superabundance of cotton on the other side of the water to supply all their needs till a new crop is marketed, only, however, upon one condition, and that is that the prediction of a 7,500,000 American crop or over another year shall be fully realized. It needs no diving into figures to prove these statements. Any school boy who has access to the figures of the world's supply and present consumption can but draw the same conclusions that we have given herein. Now let the soute verify the cables and letters that have been given to Europe as to increased acreage and see what the consequences will be in the next ninety days. The spinners w ell at New Orleans at 61/2c oming season. These staten sell at New Orleans at 6½c or lower the coming season. These statements are not made merely to write a bullish circular, but to give the people whom we may reach something to think about. The south should certainly know one thing by this time, that the bigger the crop the lower are prices and the greater is the depreciation of the collateral values of the only thing they can offer, except in comparatively few instances, as security for loans, and that is their land. Our argument, therefore, is that what the market needs is some authortative statement that the south will not try for a big crop this year. Should it become evident, however, in the next two or three months that they will do otherwise then we shall advocate the selling of the new crop, months as a matter of safety as well as profit. As we said a few days ago, if the south can stand a big crop, not only can the spinner stand it, but he will esteem the cotton planter as his meat profitable friend, evidencing his good will to the consumer in the most practical of ways. Our improvement yesterday brought no response from Liverpool. On the contrary they lost 1-64d. Our opening was steady, but the closing is 5c below last night. Indications are that the amount coming into sight the week ending tomorrow will be about 57,000 bales, against 62,000 last year.

NEW YORK, March 22.—Summary Hubbard, Price & Co.'s cotton letter: The customary decline which has occurred in Liverpool on each day that the stock of cotton was compiled and posted in that market occurred this morning, apparently to the surprise of the local trade, who expected an advance in response to the strength of our market yesterday. Naturally the disappointment led to a liquidation of some of the puchases of yesterday afternoon, and although at one time the market displayed a very steady undertone, due to the light receipts at the ports, the approach of the holidays and the general bearish feeling caused a decline of some 4 to 5 points on the morning's transactions. The stock at Liverpool and afloat for that point is the largest ever known, but this accumulation is at the expense of the supplies in America, which are something over half a million bales less than at that time. The approach of the holidays reduced the interest in the market to the lowest ebb, and the close was dull at the decline noted in the morning. Recepts at the ports are failing below the lowest estimate current earlier in the week. Hubbard, Price & Co.

Riordan & Co.'s Cotton Circular. NEW YORK, March 22.—(Special.)—The market closes today for the Easter holidays with the same lack of amination that has been its main characteristic for weeks. Liverpool sent us a decline in response to our advance of yesterday: and although By Private Wire to J. C. Knox, Manager,

-The Cincinnati Price Current, in its weekly crop summary, says: "The favorable position of the wheat market is maintained. It the port and interior receipts were very light, May again fell below 750. After the call there was a feeble rally in which May rose to 7.52, but the offerings were larger than anybody cared to take, and a reaction took place, May declining to 7.48. During the afternoon hours there was no change in the market, and the close was quiet and steady. There seemed to be no encouragement to buy, and traders are always adverse to selling on the eve of a holiday. The outside orders being few, the result was a day of great duliness. General trade is reported a triffe better, and it looks at last seported a triffe better, and it looks at last say if receipts might become very small, but the threatened passage of the Hatch bill and the fear that the south is going to plant a bigger crop, discourage buyers and hars the way to any material advance. The exchange remains closed until Monday, and the Liverpool market until Wednesday pext.

The Sun's Cotton Review.

NEW YORK, March 22.—Cotton declined 5 points, recovered most of this and then reacted, closing quiet and steady at a net decline for the day of 4 to 6 points. Sales 71,690. Liverpool declined 1½ to 2 points. Closing steady. Spot sales 800. That market will be closed till Wednesday morning, March 25th. New Orleans declined 5 points. Spot cotton here was dull and unchanged. Sales 282 for spinning. Southern markets were generally steady or firm at unchanged prices. Wilmington advanced %c and Memphis 1-16c. New Orleans closed easy. New Orleans sold 4,500, Memphis 1,500, Galveston 359 and Mobile 400. The New York exchange has adjourned until Monday. Port receipts 4,393, against 7,735 this day last week and 8,000 last year. Thus far this week 14,094, against 56,697 thus far last week. Augusta receipts 73, against 279 last year. Memphis receipts 174, against 298 last year, shipments today 293. St. Louis receipts 50, against 1122 last year; shipments today 293. St. Louis receipts 50, against 122 last year; shipments today 235. New Orleans receipts for tomorrow were estimated at 1,500, against 3,257 this day last week and 1,630 last year. The , rain fall was light at the south. For twenty-four hours there was only a trace at Memphis, Charlotte, Galveston and Atlanta, 22 of an inch at Palestine, Tex., and 60 at Little Rock. One of the most interesting features today was the fall in Liverpool and the stock statement received from that place, giving the supply at 1,840,000 bales, against 1,825,000 a week ago and 1,654,000 at this time last year. This advice caused in decline here, but some recovery followed, owing to the buying of local shorts. Liverpool is understood to have made a few purchases.

THE CHICAGO MARKET. CHICAGO, March 22.-Not until the last ten minutes of the session did wheat display any activity today, and then the trade was the purpose of liquidating by those who ten minutes of the session did wheat display any activity today, and then the trade was the purpose of liquidating by those who had bought yesterday on the prospective cold wave and who growing disheartened at the failure of prices to advance, threw their holdings overboard. At times during the day business was practically at a standstill with the pit almost deserted. The holday tomorrow was the reason for the stagnation, operators not caring to open new contracts and carry them over. The ranges of prices was narrow, May opening at 53½c, afterwards selling between 53½w 55½c and 57½c. The close was at a net loss of ½d½c for the day.

Corn showed the lack of activity that was the distinguishing features of wheat. Quite a firm feeling ruled, however, the weakness appeared in wheat during the closing moments of the session. The market opened steady at about the closing figures of yesterday, held steady until the end, when prices became weak. The close was a trifle below yesterday. May sold between 37½cc37%c and 37½c closing at the inside.

Outs were active in streaks. There was some anxiety to cover shorts, but otherwise the market was as dull as either wheat or corn. The close showed a fractional loss from yesterday. Cash oats were firm and higher, closing at the same prices as yesterday. Provisions were firm while they were al-higher, closing at the same prices as yester-day.

Provisions were firm while they were almost entirely neglected. A better hog market, and the continued light arrivals in connection with the heavy packing for the weak, 255,000 hogs against 145,000 for the corresponding week last year, served to act as props to the market for product. Shorts were the best buyers of the day. May pork closed 10c higher than yesterday; May lard 12½c higher and May ribs 5c higher. There was a good cash demand for meats.

A fairly liberal amount of outside orders kept the market steady around 58c the greater portion of the day, but near the close scalpers and local traders generally sold out their holdings, causing rather a weak closing at about the lowest price of the day. The Cincinnati Price Current statement was about an offset, stating that while the average might be smaller than last year the high condition of the winter wheat and the favorable seeding for spring would probably make up for this. It is entirely too early to figure on the next crop, but so far conditions seem to be favorable, but with prospects of a light acreage.

Course grains were fairly firm. The cash demand good with a foreign demand. The prospects are exceedingly favorable for early seeding and a large acreage of oats. This may cause lower prices for July delivery.

is doubtful if spring seeding will equal last year. An increase in the oats and corn acreage is probable. The better average condition of the crop may overcome acreage deficiency and result in a production equal to last year, but it is not likely to furnish an exportable surplus to equal such dispo-sition. The outlook is regarded as mani-festing more confidence."

Wednesday night. Through the southwest it is cold enough to freeze hard, the thermometer being 24 above at Winchester, and 30 in Texas, but the crowd has ignored that.

The crop of 1894 will require for seed at amount fully equal to one-half of that held by farmers. A considerable amount will yet he fed out, and a great deal will be stubbornly held for higher prices. These facts explain the low and continually diminishing receipts and the premium which northwestern millers are forced to pay for acceptable stocks.

MR COMER IS ASKED TO EXPLAIN Swidently the Central Wants to Shut Out the Macon and Northern on Through Business.

Maccn, Ga., March 22.-(Special.)-The silroads of the state will await with interest the result of a hearing on a petition est the result of a hearing on a petition filed in the United States court at Macon by Receiver N. E. Harris, of the Macon by Receiver N. E. Harris, of the Macon and Northern road, asking for a construc-tion of the federal statute bearing upon the interstate commerce act. The petition al-legs that the Central road will not receive at Macon through freight for points below Macon that are shipped over the Macon and Northern road. As an illustration, the Northern road. As an inustration, the petition cites that a car of fertilizer was shipped from Portsmouth, Va., to Athens over the Georgia, Carolina and Northern road, and there delivered to the Macon and thern and brought to Macon, and the tral refused to receive it at Macon and centry the car to the point of destination, towit, Wise, a station on the Southwestern read, the Southwestern being operated by the Central. If the car had been delivered at Atlanta by the Georgia, Carohna and Northern, or delivered at Augusta the Cen-tral would have been pleased to re-ceive the car, because it would celve the car, because it would then have obtained a long haul.

Judge Speer directs that Receiver Comer make answer to the petition of Receiver Harris.
The Macon and Northern is doing considerable through business, and seems to be a thorn in the side of some older and more

He Fancied the Dog.

Last Monday night Marle Jansen played n Macon. One of the male members of he company carried-with him from the tity a fine pointer dog belonging to Mr. woody. A citizen says he told the Ike Dunwoody. A clozen says he told the man that he had better not carry the dog off, and he is said to have replied that if he ever once got out of the city with him the dog would never be seen in Macon again. Less evening Mr. Dunwoody reagain. Leveling all. Dulwood le-ported the circumstance to Chief of Police Butner and the chief wired to Chief Greene, of Savannah, a description of the man and dog and asked the arrest of the man. This morning Chief Butner received a reply from Chief Greene stating that the arrest had been made and he awaited instructions. Chief Butner then wired that the dog be ed to Macon and the man be made to pay all expenses, and if he failed to deliver up the dog or pay expenses to hold the man until an officer could be sent to Savannah for him. It is presumed that the dog will he in Macon by the next train.

He Paid the Penalty. Testerday the trial of Berryhill and Steele, of Chauncy, commenced in the United States court. They were charged with illicit distilling and removing whisky n a bonded warehouse. The case has recited considerable interest on account of the standing of the defendants in their community. Steele was found not guilty today, but Berryhill was declared guilty. Judge Speer sentenced him to imprisonment in the Ohio penifentiary and to pay a fine of $1,000 and costs. An Old Offender.

Today in the United States court Arthur Goodwin, of Monroe county, plead guilty to the charge of illicit distilling in 1891. The officers had a bench warrant for him and have been trying to catch him several years, but never succeeded. They were very much surprised when he walked into the government building yesterday and vol-untarily gave himself up to the officers. About three weeks ago the officers broke up a distillrey of Goodwin's very near the location of the distillery that was selzed in 1891. The rand on the distillery in 1891 was headed by United States Marshal Corbett. Several deputies accompanied him. Goodwin narrowly escaped being caught at that time. Several negroes were arrested. While the officers and their prisoners were going up a hill near the still the gun of Deputy Marshal Jack Lofton accidentally fired and one of the prisoners, Carey Evans, was killed. A case was entered for mur-der against Lofton in the superior court of Monroe county, and soon after it was transferred to the United States court at Macon, but it never came to trial. A short time ago Lofton died. They Want Money.

They Want Money.

Mr. Hugh Washington, attorney, filed two suits in the office of the clerk of Bibb superior court today. One was J. L. Robertson vs. Macon Consolidated Street Railroad Company for $500 damages for injuries received in being thrown out of a wason, the horse to which was frightened by an electric car and ran away.

William McDonaid sues the city of Macon for $5,000 damages for injuries received by a wagon in which he was riding falling into a sewer. He was caught under the wagon, knocked insensible and experely injured.

$1,300 Damages.

A few years ago Mrs. Cicero Thorpe, of Macon, was hurt in a railroad accident on a Georgia Pacific train while traveling in Cobb county. She brought suit against the road through her attorney, Mr. Claud Estes, of Macon. The case has just been tried at Marietta, and a verdict of $1,300 rendered for Mrs. Thorpe. Hon. Harry Jackson and Hon. Steve Clay represented the road. Under all the circumstances, Mr. Estes won a brilliant victory.

The Catholic Knights.

The state council of Catholic Knights of America will assemble in regular annual session at Macon next Tuesday. The council was to have met in Brunswick, but the change of place was deemed advisable. The yellow fever succeeded in breaking up the branch of the order in that city. As soon as the quarantine was raised from the city that had been besieged by the scourge, President John C. Cassidy, of Albany, in the city that had been besieged by the scourge, President John C. Cassidy, of Albany, in the city that had been besieged by the scourge, President John C. Cassidy, of Albany, in the city that had been besieged by the scourge, President John C. Cassidy, of Albany, in the city and asking that some other place be selected. At the banquet of the Emmet Association, Ancient Order of Hibernians, Hibernian Society and the Catholic Knights of America, held in Macon last Sunday, it was decided to hold the state council in this city.

It is expected that there will be a large attendance of knights, Quite a number of prominent and influential citizens of Macon belong to the organization. The principal business will be the revision of the state bylaws, to receive and hear reports as to the condition of the order throughout the state and its financial standing. Steps will be taken to extend the order throughout the state. The state officers will be elected, as well as the delegate to the supreme council to be held in Omaha in May, 1895.

RAILROAD NEWS.

The Central Declines to Haul a Car from Railroads in Georgia Kick Against the Ticket Scalpers.

> POSTPONED MONTGOMERY MEETING. The Great Railroad Bridge That Is to Span the Mississippi River-Other News

in Railroad Circles.

The railroads in Georgia are preparing to make an effort at anti-scalper legislation be-fore the next session of the legislature. There was never before such a strong sen timent among the officials of the leading railroads of this section in opposition to the practice of these ticket traders as just now. They will probably unite with a strong pe-tition to the next legislature to have some sort of bill passed that will have the effect iness of the scalpers.

The movement was started at the last ses ion of the general assembly, but the bill that was framed and introduced had some hitch in the committees and failed to get through of stamping out, as far as possible, the bus-

The passenger departments of the southern lines report more fraud in the trading of tickets than was ever dreamed of before, and there seems to have been a recent onset of the brokers against the roads, such as was never experienced before.

Many grave complaints are heard from all the roads entering Atlanta.

The sentiment appears to be taking favor among the lawmakers of the country in opposition to the schemes of scalpers, and many of the states are preparing to follow the course of Texas. Not only this, there has been a bill introduced in the national congress against ticket trading. This measure, if it should become a law, will probably offset the movement in Geor-gia to have some legislation against the practices of scalpers, but if it should not pass and take effect it is pretty certain that there will be a united effort on the part of the railroads in Georgia to get some pro tection against the "go-betweens" when the general assembly meets again. Speaking of the merits of the bill that has been introduced in congress against scalping, The Railway Age briefly puts the question as follows: "If ever there was a measure which deserved support on its merits in ...e interest of honesty and equity, it is the bill now before congress to prohibit ticket scalping. Its passage will benefit: "I. Conductors, who are now harassed and subjected to loss in handling bogus and worthless tickets.

worthless tickets. "2. Ticket agents, whose commissions are seriously reduced by the competition of unauthorized and unscrupulous dealers.
"3. Railway employes generally, whose salaries suffer on account of the scalpers' depredations upon the companies' earnings.

"4. Stockholders, manufacturers, dealers in railway supplies, and all others to whom increased earnings by railways mean increased income and business.
"5. Honest travelers generally, to whom the railways would be able to give lower rates if scalpers were abolished.

And Now Again Postponed. Once more the meeting of the directors of the Western Railway of Alabama, to have been held in Montgomery on the 21st, has been postponed, and the proposed change of management of the road is covered in mys-been postponed, and the proposed change or management of the road is covered in mystery for some time to come.

Just what it is that prevents this meeting from taking place cannot be ascertained. The officials of the road have nothing to say on the subject, and won't even say the meeting was postponed, but the fact that it was not held according to announcement tells what they seem to have a hesitancy in telling openly.

No time for holding the meeting has been fixed, or if it has been fixed, it is not given out to the public.

The meeting was to have been held in January. It was postponed until February, and then again postponed until February, and then again postponed until the 21st of March. Now it is postponed, and nothing can be learned as to the cause.

It seems to have been suddenly postponed this last time, as a telegram from General Manager Tyler to parties in Montgomery, declaring simply that the meeting would not be held Wednesday, is all the information that was had to this effect.

Colonel Phinizy, president of the road, was in Atlanta from Augusta on his way to attend the meeting, but returned home from this city, and did not go to Montgomery.

It is believed that the proposition to make

It is believed that the proposition to make a change in the management by the Central people through Mr. Comer has been abandoned. This is not affirmed, nor is it yet denied. Mr. Comer refuses to talk about the matter, and of course, as long as he refuses to say anything the present management cannot very well talk about it.

Reorganization of the R. and D. It now begins to appear that the Richmond and Danville will soon be safely out of the condition of bankruptcy that has, for so long a time, held its nose to the grinding stone. Many efforts have been made by the capitalists interested to pull it out of the action, but they have all failed. There is every indication, however, that the Richmond. Lich, but they have all failed. There is every indication, however, that the Richmond Terminal plan of reorganization, as recently modified by Messrs. Coster, Sherman and Thomas, the reorganizing committee, will be unqualifiedly successful. The plan, as published last week, is endorsed by leading bankers and capitalists of New York city as eminently just and fair, as well as one in which investors may fearlessly and unhesitatingly place their money. The same opinion seems to be prevalent in Baltimore, where many of the securities of the Richmond Terminal system are held.

The Biggest Bridge.

The Biggest Bridge.

Supervising Engineer Corthell furnishes the following details of the railway bridge which is to be built across the Mississippi river at New Orleans:

"The main span will be 1,070 feet long, and the side spans each 602; the height of the bottom of the superstructure, 85 feet above the extreme high water level, and the highest point of the superstructure 164 feet above the top of the piers, or 249 feet above highest water level. Thus the length of the bridge, proper, will be 2,274 feet. The two towers of the superstructure that will be 164 feet high will be over the two main piers, and the end towers over the end piers will be much shorter.

"The center of the cantilever between the two large towers will be 85 feet above the top of the piers, and the superstructure will contain about 25,000,000 pounds of steel and fron. The cross section of the piers will be about 126 feet up and down stream, and 60 feet across. The lower section of the pier will be constructed of Louisiana pme, botted together, with wells left in the interior. After the pier is sunk and the matter that fills the wells taken out, they will be filled with concrete, so that the cribbing, when completed, will be a solid mass of pine and concrete and 164 feet of steel and iron, or 438 feet from the metal cutters, at the bottom of the superstructure. As the river is 100 feet deep at this point, the wooden pier foundations will have to be built on the surface and sunk to their beds ninety feet below the bottom of the stream. It is expected to begin actual constructive work in about two months."

Railroad Management.

At the semi-annual meeting of the American Railway Association to be held at the Hotel Brunswick, on Wednesday, April lith, many important changes in rallroad managements and rules will be formulated. The various committees having in charge the work of the association, which includes all the railways of the country, have been holding conferences and devising suggestions since the last meeting of the organization. They are now preparing their reports, and while they will not be made public until the sessionate is known that they embody a number of important changes. The following are the committees that will have interesting reports ready: Executive, train rules, car service, safety appliances, interlocking and block signals, relation with employes.

STRAIN CAUSES

Headaches, Neuralgia, Dizziness, Nau sea, Insomnia, Nervous Dyspepsis and Numerous Other Nervou Troubles-Dr. Moore's Discovery.

Thousands of persons are dying by inches as the result of violent and persistent headaches, dizziness, nausea, neuraigia and a myriad of other distressing symptoms, who can be permanently cured, provided the cause be discovered and removed. Many of these unfortunates are treated for almost every disease in the catalogue of ills—one physician treats them for the stomach, another for the liver, and still another for the nerves, and so on, but all to no purpose, as the disease continue with unabated violence. Hundreds of these sufferers have obtained a new lease of life at the hands of Dr. J. Harvey Moore, the oculist, at 203 and 204 Kiser building, who has wrought so much good in this city and vicinity during his stay among us. Dr. Moore has discovered that the eye is the source of many of these nervous disturbances in most cases and that they are curable by proper treatment.

He employs all the latest and most improved instruments known to science in detecting and correcting these optical defects and his skill is attested by the numerous patients he has cured right here in Atlanta, many of these being among our best known people. It is a fact well worthy of note that many persons suffer from eye strain who are not aware that there is anything wrong with their eyes. They may see perfectly both near and far, but persistent use of the eyes becomes thresome and painful. These cases need to have the tension and strain removed from their eyes. Many have become conscious of this fact and had their sight wholly or partially ruined by allowing jewelers, opticlans, peddlers and other ignorant persons to "tinker" with their eyes.

THE LARGEST GROUP OF BABIES IN THE WORLD IS NOW BEING MADE BY C. W. MOTES, THE PHOTOGRAPHER.

I propose to make the largest group of children under three years old ever made by photography to be exhibited at the Convention of Photographers of America at St. Louis, Mo., next July.

Only 50c will be Charged for Each Sitting

In order to induce parents to aid me in this undertaking I make the following liberal offer: I will give to each of the first five hundred children one fine Cabinet Photograph or aristotype and a souveair copy of group. In addition, ten elegant, finely finished enlargements will be given as premiums to the ten prettiest children, to be awarded by a committee of competent judges. Make engagements at once and let the fun commence, and urge your friends to do likewise. I am never happier than when making pictures of the little ones and will endeavor to accure the happiest results and make this the largest, best and most artistic work ever produced.

People who visited the world's fair were dismayed at the extent and variety of the art exhibits. Weeks, and even months, could have been spent in the galleries without seeing the half of the treasures stored therein. The art building was the center of attraction for all visitors, and the crowds were consequently so great that the pleasure of seeing the fine paintings, satuary, etc., celebrated all the world over, was greatly marred.

It was the universally expressed regret that these treasures, more valuable for human enjoyment than mountains of gold, would soon be returned whence they came, and the opportunity for seeing them again and studying and appreciating them, forever lost. This was indeed a sad reflection for lovers of art, and if we are to judge by the crowds that visited the art galleries all intelligent Americans should be counted in this class.

But there is rarely an evil without a compensating good, and the rule ho.ds good in this instance. By means of photography the art galleries and their immense treasures have been preserved for all time to come, and the assurance that we can possess them for ourselves, and see and study and appreciate them in our own homes, almost without cost, adds immeasurably to the pleasure of this fact.

The portfolios of "The Magic City," which are now such a popular feature of The Constitution, make a specialty of the art galleries and their contents, as well as of the Midway plaisance and its strange inhabitants. Several portfolio series have been published exclusively on this subject, but none of them contains so complete a representation as "The Magic City" does. Neither are they so attractive, for their views are not printed in that splendd royal purple polor which to distinguishes this work from all others.

The permanent educational influence of the extensive circulation of such a splendid and beautiful serial as "The Magic City" can hardly be estimated. It is worth more to any young man or woman than a term at school. It is even worth more than a tour of Europe among the henest art centers of the world could not impart.

If you are not getting "The Magic City" you should begin at once. No. 6 is now ready, and we will furnish all the back numbers for 10 cents each without coupons. Don't deprive yourself and your family of such a treasure when we offer it to you for less than the cost of production and distribution. It is in fact a splendid present when procured from us on our regular terms. If you are taking other portfolios take "The Magic City" also, for you will find on comparison that it is complete and certainly the most beautiful of all.

Georgia Police Chiefs and Sheriffs to Gather in Convention.

TO BE HELD AT THE POLICE STATION

National Organization, Has Organ-ized the Forces. Of all the conventions that have been held

Chief Connolly, Vice-President of the

In Atlanta one of the most picturesque and original will be held next week. It is the convention of police chiefs, marshals and sheriffs of Georgia, and it will convene in the spacious armory at police headquarters at 10 o'clock next Wednesday morning. It is the first convention of the kind that has ever been held in the state, and it promises great advancement in the methods of catching criminals and in the matter of cooperation among Georgia officers. The convention will probably be in session several days, and the majority of Georgia's chiefs of police, sheriffs and marshals are expected to be present.

Chief Connolly is the chief movant in the matter, and to his efforts the convention will be due. He has worked incessantly, organizing the force for the convention next week, and every indication promises a most successful gatnering.

The meetings of the convention promise to be of absorbing interest. The matters to be discussed will be those relating to a more thorough organization of the efficers of the state. New and improved methods in look-ing up and identifying criminals will be discussed, and a general interchange of ideas and views indulged in.

Chief Connolly has about completed fils programme for the first day's session of the convention. On Wednesday morning the delegates will assemble in the large police armory on the third floor at police headquarters, and will be welcomed to the city by Mayor Goodwin. Judge Andrew E. Calhoun with introduce the mayor and make a few remarks on his own account. Chairman English, of the board of police commissioners, will be one of the speakers before the convention, and the knowledge gathered from his lengthy connection with the police department of Atlanta will be of great value to the visiting officers. There will be numerous speakers among the visitors, and Chief Connolly is expected to be heard from in a speech.

Chief Connolly is expected to be heard in a speech.

The first day will be mainly devoted to organization. There has never been an organization of this kind in Georgia, and Chief Connolly, as a member and vice president of the National League of Police Chiefs, will organize the convention. The association of Georgia thus organized will be a member of the national association will be used by the Georgia association will be used by the Georgia association.

sociation will be used by the Georgia association.

Aside from the other advantages that will accrue, the convention will antord the officers a fine opportunity to become better acquainted with one another, and thus render the police work of the state more effective. The officers, being acquainted, will work together in capturing fleeing criminals more earnestly.

The convention will be in session three or four days. Delegates to the national convention which meets at St. Louis, Mo., in May will be elected. Chief Connolly is vice president of the national organization and, of course, will attend the St. Louis convention. He was present at the convention held in Chicago during the world's fair, and is enthusiastic over the promised good.

Chiefs Connolly and Wright and the other officers of the Atlanta police department will take good care of the visiting officers.

SPARKLING CIDER.

SPARKLING CIDER. How a Dry Town Was Flooded with

The little town of Lovejoy, in Clayton county, believes firmly in prohibition and it has been a long time since intoxicants were sold openly within her gates. Commissione Broyles, however, took hold of a case yes-terday and in a short time it developed that some of the Lovejoy merchants were not so saintly as their neighbors supposed Mr. A. V. McVicker and his son were brought up for "retailing without license." Mr. McVicker is one of the most prominent men in the town. He carries on a large business in the general merchandise line, and his customers come for miles around. For some time he has had a great run in the soda water trade. One brand called "Sparkling Champagne" cider was immensely popular. In fact, it was hard to supply the demand for the drink, and all his clerks were kept busy pulling stoppers for the crowd. It was noticed that the fluid had a peculiar effect and a kind of feeling of exhilaration penetrated the system of those who imbibed too freely. This excited the suspicions of the law-abiding people. Upon investigation they decided to prosecute McVicker and he was brought up to Atlanta yesterday for preliminary incar-ing. He was bound over for trial before the United States court. Disastrous Failure!

We can mention no failure more disastrous than that of physical energy. It involves the partial suspension of the digestive and assimilative processes, and entails the retirement from business of the liver and kidneys. Only through the good offices of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters can the restoration of its former vigorous status be hoped for. When this aid has been secured, a resumption of activity in the stomach, liver and bowels may be relied upon. The bitters conquers malaria and kidney trouble.

FROM THE TWO DISTRICTS.

Ministers from North and South Atlanta Meet at Trinity Church. About fifty preachers from the two districts of the city met at Trinity church last night at 8 o'clock. The principal feature of the meeting was a sermon by the Rev. Dr. M. F. Cofer. Dr. Cofer preached a strong sermon from the text: "Watch ye; stand fast in the faith; quit ye like men; be strong."

"Watching," he said, "was as necessary as praying. The true Christian does both as praying. The true Christian does both. Men should have more faith. Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and you will be saved. Be manful. Be a man on all occasions, and under all circumstances. Be

Mr. Cofer announced that, at 9 o'clock Mr. Coler announced that, at 9 o'clock this morning, another meeting of the ministers of the two districts would be held in Trinity church, for the purpose of discussing the question of revivals, and the need of them in Atlanta. At 11 o'clock, Bishop Haygood will preach in the auditorium of the church.

A Grand Affair to Open in Atlanta on the 26th.

The military fair of the Capital City Guards promises to be a grand event.

It will open up with great pomp on the 26th at 42 Broad street.

The programme has many striking features and the list of attractions is large. The booths will represent the different states of the south and they will be decorated with the flags of those states.

The restaurant will be under the charge of Mrs. Flanders, Mrs. W. Adams and Mrs. Charles Runette. The fair promises to be one of the biggest events of the year in military circles and the ladies are working it up in earnest. Mrs. Dr. Barrett, as director, has succeeded in getting a large list of contributors to the many striking programmes.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria. When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria. When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria. When she had Children, she gave them Castoria,

TO THE UNKNOWN DEAD.

Handsome Monument Will Be Unveiled in Atlanta on April 26th. The heroism of the unknown dead who fell in the defense of the southern confederacy will be fittingly memorialized in a handsome shaft to be unveiled in Oakland cemetery.

This interesting ceremony will be performed on the 26th of April, the time which is universally observed for decorating the graves of the confederate dead. The orator has not yet been selected for that occa sion, but it goes without saying that the committee to whom this important matter has been entrusted will make a proper and wise selection.

The occasion is one that will inspire no ble and lofty sentiment. If an orator of established reputation is selected, it will do him honor, if it falls to the lot of a younger man, it will be his opportunity. man, it will be his opportunity.

In Oakland cemetery a number of soldier boys who wore the gray are interred with nothing to mark their resting places except a plain slab, bearing the inscription "unknown."

except a plain slab, bearing the inscription "unknown."

Their names are buried with their ashes, and share the repose in which they have slept for nearly thirty years; but the heroism with which they struggled for all that was dear to them in the dark days of the war, may, no doubt, have been as lofty and as fearless as any who fell immortalized on the field of conflict.

The monument is being wrought of Georgia marble, and its epitaph as well as the enduring adamant of its composition, will do honor to the heroes of the confederacy.

A special committee, with Mrs. John Milledge and several other ladies from the Memorial Association, will go up to Canton next week for the purpose of inspecting the monument, which is being produced at that quarry.

The occasion of the unveiling will be of

The occasion of the unveiling will be of The occasion of the unveiling will be of interest to everybody in the south.

Captain John Milledge will be the marshal of the day. A braver soldier never honored the blood of a noble ancestry than Captain Milledge, and his levotion to the south and her cause, during the late war, was illustrated in the measure of a chivalry as free from cowardice as from the stain of hishonor. Captain Milledge will present a picturesque and imposing figure on the occasion of the unveiling.

A full programme for the day will blely be arranged during the approximation week.

Illness in New York.

Mr. J. Whitcomb Riley, the poet-humorist, is detained on account of illness in New York city, and will not be able to continue his southern trip.

This will be a great disappointment to his many friends in this city and throughout the south who were looking forward to his coming with keen anticipation.

Mr. Frank L. Stanton and Mr. Julian Harris, of The Constitution, were to bave read with Mr. Riley in New Orleans next month, but on account of the latter's illness this engagement has also been cancelled. Illness in New York.

The sermons of Bishop Haygood are all eloquent, thoughtful and full of practical philosophy. His admirers and friends in this city are always glad of an opportunity to hear him preach. There is no doubting the efficacy of Dr. Buil's Cough Syrup. It cures every time.
